

Cover Letter: Remote AI Content Creator

To: Hiring Team, 7 Automations

From: Onatola Timilehin Faruq

Re: Remote AI Content Creator

I'm writing to apply for the AI Content Creator role. I've been working with AI generation tools for the past year and have a track record of shipping polished, high-quality visual content under deadline.

Relevant work:

I won the Content Creation Track at the Zypherpunk Hackathon (Mina Foundation) for Privacy Chronicles, a 5-episode educational series (70+ pages) on zero-knowledge proofs, built end-to-end using AI generation tools. I sourced visual references, wrote detailed prompts to generate consistent characters, refined outputs to meet a specific aesthetic standard, and published across episodes while keeping visual consistency throughout. I also built Glass Wallet, a 12-page interactive comic on blockchain privacy, which won the Solana Privacy Hackathon. Both projects required exactly the skills you described: an eye for what looks real and high-quality, precise AI prompting, and obsessive attention to detail when spotting glitches or inconsistencies in generated images.

Why I'm a strong fit:

I work remotely and communicate fast. At DeFiConnectCredit I've been fully async and responsive across time zones for over a year. I have a stable setup (fiber connection, backup power, laptop) and can commit to the 12 PM to 10 PM Nigeria time window, 5 days a week.

Attention to detail is non-negotiable in my current work too. I audit smart contracts for critical vulnerabilities and have caught issues that would have cost users real money. That same eye carries over directly to spotting tiny glitches in AI images before they ship.

I'm a fast learner, I follow instructions precisely, and I'm comfortable working through a detailed onboarding process. Green light on all the requirements listed.

I'm ready to start immediately. Happy to provide samples of my content work or do a short trial task.

Onatola Timilehin Faruq

onatolafaruq@gmail.com | linkedin.com/in/leihyn